Young Audiences of Oregon, Inc. is grateful to the individuals, foundations, corporations and government entities furthered our mission of enhancing children’s education.
Arts and Education

In 2003-04, professional teaching artists in music, dance, visual, theatre and literary arts, all selected through a rigorous accreditation process, shared their diverse cultures and artistic disciplines with children in myriad Arts and Education Programs: residencies, workshops, performances, family arts nights. As a result, thousands of children have learned to sing and dance, work with paint and clay, act and write poems.

Run For The Arts

In 2003-04, students, teachers, friends and families continued to support their schools’ Run For The Arts to assure that the community artists who enrich teaching and learning could come into their classrooms. The Run is the Pacific Northwest’s single largest source of funding for the arts in schools. Since 1977, this project has helped schools raise more than $7 million to pay for community-based arts and education programming.

Arts for Learning

In 2003-04, Arts for Learning formed a professional development opportunity for artists and classroom teachers. Young Audiences joined with Oregon Arts Commission, Oregon Alliance for Arts Education, and the schools of education at Portland State University, Eastern Oregon University, Southern Oregon University and Western Oregon University to offer new and innovative approaches to teaching through the arts.

Each year, Young Audiences’ Sunburst Awards Breakfast honors representatives of the community who have demonstrated an exemplary commitment to the arts and education. Each year, students from John Ball school drummed and danced to demonstrate what they had learned in a residency, and storyteller Will Hornback shared stories that are not just for kids.
